Annex B — Information about lots

Lot No 1

Title: Fixed communications

1) Short description:

Lot 1: Fixed communications.

The PBX systems of the ECB in Frankfurt must be provided access to the PSTN by the service provider chosen in the course of the tender procedure. Dual homing is needed to ensure high availability of the PSTN connection. The access lines between the ECB telephone systems and the provider's network must ensure that no single point of failure (PBX system, carrier switch, physical line) can disrupt the external communication service provided to the ECB. For that purpose, automatic call routing in the service provider's network must signal the calls to the PBX systems of the ECB.

The ECB must be able to maintain the currently used phone numbers.

An option within lot 1 will be the provisioning of a secure Voice over IP (VoIP) trunk between the service provider and the ECB-internal telecommunication environment, preferably using the Session Initiation Protocol (SIP) for signalling voice communications between the ECB and external peers through the VoIP infrastructure of the service provider which should offer connectivity to the PSTN, to the Internet and to the private VoIP environments of other companies and organisations using the same VoIP trunk service.

2) Common procurement vocabulary (CPV):

64200000, 6421000.

5) Additional information about lots:

The lots are to be regarded as independent. The ECB reserves the right to assign the lots to diverse suppliers or both lots to 1 supplier.

Lot No 2

Title: Mobile communications

1) Short description:

Lot II: Mobile communications.

The selected service provider for mobile voice and data communications must deliver this kind of service to the ECB users with a global coverage, especially in all countries of the European Union, and ensure that cellular access is also possible within the ECB premises in Frankfurt.

The delivery and support for these kinds of devices are included in the tender:

— mobile phones and smart phones including the SIM cards: delivery, replacement, technical support, hotline for users,

— PC cards for access to high-performance mobile data service, e.g. the Universal Mobile Telecommunications System (UMTS), General Packet Radio Service (GPRS) etc.

For the purpose of providing push access to e-mail, the ECB requires a secure solution. The first-time activation of secure data access through the above-mentioned devices must be deployed by the service provider under the direction of the ECB while ongoing operation for maintaining the service is accomplished by the ECB. The ECB maintains an own security infrastructure connected to the Internet which is to be used for secure data access by mobile ECB users. The mobile data communications must support at least push services used to access to e-mail and secure Web access through the security infrastructure of the ECB (instead of direct access to the Internet).

The mobile service provider chosen in the course of the tender procedure must deliver mobile access to the Internet through Wireless Local Area Network (WLAN) hot spots in the following cases:

— the service provider must install and operate several hot spots for public access to the Internet on selected ECB premises,

— the service provider must enable ECB users to use public hot spots for access to the Internet.

It must be technically possible and supported by the new service provider that any ECB user has the choice to maintain the currently used mobile phone number.

2) Common procurement vocabulary (CPV):

64200000, 64212000.

5) Additional information about lots:

The lots are to be regarded as independent. The ECB reserves the right to assign the lots to diverse suppliers or both lots to 1 supplier.
